Find out how you can make a vital difference

Could you make a difference to patients' lives as a Reservist?

The NHS Reserve is a team of trained, paid workers that the NHS can call on in times of need. There's a wide range of paid Reservist roles on offer, both clinical and non-clinical, matched to your experience and flexible to your availability. Time commitment is planned and scheduled to suit you.

Becoming a reservist works for me because...

I want to be confident in my degree choice and I get to experience what working in the NHS is like alongside my studies

What I love most about being a reservist is...

Getting to learn new skills that carry responsibility and earning a little money along the way
